

About If It Ain't Love :

"This is the best album I've heard in the last five years! Magpie has always been a thoroughly enjoyable duo, but in this album they have really hit an artistic high point."

- Art Thieme, Come For to

Sing

"...an impeccable showcase for the group's virtuosity. Terry Leonino's soprano—sometimes gutsy, sometimes delicate, but always very versatile—sounds better than ever. Her mandolin, harmonica, and dulcimer playing are nothing short of miraculous. Greg Artzner provides strong, sensitive guitar accompaniments and vocals."

- Liz Milner, Duckberg

Times

"These folks are flat out good. Magpie moves as easily from a lament for Archbishop Romero to Fats Waller as a hot knife through soft butter. Whether performing a swing standard or an angry denunciation of corporate greed, Magpie makes us hear both the music and the lyric..."

- Rob Weir, New Haven

Advocate

"Their two part harmony is a delight, and Terry Leonino is one of the finest female harmonica players around."

- Michael Horyczun, Stamford

Advocate